Is Demonic Possession Possible ?

About Demonic Possession:

A demon is believed to be a demonic living spiritual entity that dwells outside the kingdom of God. It is usually filled with anger, resentment and hate, and can be highly volatile and malevolent in character. It is also believed that demons are enslaved servants in Satan's kingdom, and are used to try to harm and corrupt mankind.

Is it possible, that people can still be demon-possessed today like in biblical times or like in exorcism movies? Can demons possess a human being? Can they actually enter in a human body and manipulate a person's thoughts and actions, and even affect their bodily functions?

Actually, biblical scripture does teach that demons are real, and that they do torment people. Jesus Christ and His twelve apostles were known to have extracted demons from possessed people.

Most people, however, have never seen a demonic possession that's as frightening as seen in the movies, like the Exorcist.

Demons don't need to produce special effects to achieve their desired effect. Instead, they work in stealth to simply prevent people from believing or having faith in God and tempt them into committing acts of immorality.

They can succeed in that by creating fear and confusion, or by merely distracting people with entertainment activities, conflicts, greed, lust, envy, vanity, or a host of other preoccupations.

Some demons are more powerful than others; and some group together to form a legion and are able to manipulate a person into committing horrible crimes such as terror attacks, murder, assault, kidnapping, rape, fraud, thievery and a host of other harmful acts.

Some demons will manipulate a person into defiling their body through though addictions, such as alcoholism, drug abuse, commercial pornography, using foul and hurtful language, and even cause them to ornament their body in a highly vain manner.

Demons can also cause a person to become mentally or physically ill, and seemingly, without a cure to heal the illness, and sometimes they will do more subtle things like cause a person to become obese, have a speech, hearing or vision impairment, or a learning disability.

I once experienced a demon-possessed person where the demon caused the person's body to emit a foul order which could not be removed, even after bathing.

Demons tend to target people who are emotionally frail, spiritually uneducated; weak in faith, a non-believer in Christ, and those that focus their thoughts on materialism and lustful sexual activity.

Demons are masters at breaking up marriages and causing painful, agonizing and heartbreaking divorces, and they thrive on confusing women into having abortions in order to kill their unborn infants.

In Many cases, a person is not even aware that there is a demon residing within them. Then in other cases, a person is aware of the demon presence but is too confused or fearful to try and do anything about it.

If a person is indeed truly possessed with a demon, it can be extremely difficult to get the demon removed.

Very rarely can a person, by them self, remove, extract or cast out the demon. It most always takes a highly trained spiritualist, such as a Priest, Minister, Pastor or Shaman to accomplish this task.

However, in no way should this ever be attempted by an untrained person.

It can be an exceedingly dangerous process for even a spiritualist to attempt an extraction unless they are an experienced, harden spiritual warrior and able to overcome any level of fear that can be thrust at them from a demonic entity.

It is estimated that about two thirds of the world's population believe that a person can become demon possessed. Amazingly, more people believe in demon possession then they do that Jesus Christ was the Son of God, and was born as a mortal human being and walked on the Earth.

Many people and families have unknowingly been victimized or tormented by demon possession. They are simply unaware that a demonic spiritual entity is the source of their affliction.

Most people who are suffering from a tormenting affliction turn to Medical Doctors, Psychiatrists, and Phycologists in hopes of receiving an effective treatment.

This usually results in a person being treated with a regiment of pharmaceutical drugs which in many cases can end up being more harmful then helpful, as many of these drugs have harmful and even degenerative side-effects.

Some people will even turn to Paranormal Investigators to try and cleanse their environment of a suspected demonic entity that may be causing their affliction.

In my work as a Pastor and Ordained Minister, I have had numerous encounters with individuals that were demonically possessed, and in most cases, were able to end the possession.

If you suspect or believe that you, a family member or loved one may be possessed by a demon, you are welcome to contact me.

Sincerely,
